Hey, it's me again.

A couple months ago we met with you and the City to discuss source control in general and stormwater source control specifically. I've attached the notes from that meeting.

I've also attached my first draft of our stormwater "message" which was one of my assignments from that meeting. The idea was to develop a simple way to tell stakeholders and the public how we're dealing with this stormwater stuff. I'd like your feedback on the following questions:

1. Is this in line with what you think our "message" should look/sound like? Suggestions?
2. Are you on board with the approach described in the document? We've discussed this with you before, but perhaps not with the same level of clarity/detail, and seemed to have your support - - - does that still hold true?

Once we get things squared away with the content, we'll start putting together our thoughts on how we want to get the word out there.

It'd be great to hear back from you by the end of next week. Thanks!

Karen
